

Rebuilding the Foodshed: How to Create Local, Sustainable, and Secure Food Systems

By Philip Ackerman-Leist

Chelsea Green Publishing Co, United States, 2013. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 226 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. Doves of people have turned to local food as a way to retreat from our broken industrial food system. From rural outposts to city streets, they are sowing, growing, selling, and eating food produced close to home and they are crying out for agricultural reform. All this has made local food into everything from a movement buzzword to the newest darling of food trendsters. But now it's time to take the conversation to the next level. That's exactly what Philip Ackerman-Leist does in Rebuilding the Foodshed, in which he refocuses the local-food lens on the broad issue of rebuilding regional food systems that can replace the destructive aspects of industrial agriculture, meet food demands affordably and sustainably, and be resilient enough to endure potentially rough times ahead. Changing our foodscapes raises a host of questions. How far away is local? How do you decide the size and geography of a regional foodshed? How do you tackle tough issues that plague food systems large and small issues like inefficient transportation, high energy demands, and rampant food waste? How...
