Notes On Schools, Exhibitions, And Factories. Tlie Darmstadt Polytechnic. The new Polytechnic at Darmstadt, erected in place of an earlier building, was specially visited in order to see the most recent development of schools for the highest branches of technical teaching. The main building is threestoreyed, and comprises three wings at right angles to it, giving an E-shaped plan. These buildings are devoted to the teaching of mathematics and some branches of natural science, and to the schools of architecture and engineering. In the wing buildings, moreover, the first year students receive their instruction. Opposite to the front entrance to the Polytechnic, and on the other side of the road, are two separate institutes, one of which contains the physical and electro-technical schools, and the other the chemical laboratories and class-rooms. In the rear of the main building is the engine-house, from which electric...
