Excerpt from Short Lectures to Electrical There short Lectures require a word, by way of preface, to explain that they were not in any way intended as a connected exposition of even elementary principles of electro-technics. Being desirous that practical training should be supplemented by some attention to theory, Mr. R. E. B. Crompton requested me to give during the past winter some Lectures on subjects connected with the principles underlying modern electrical engineering to the pupils and workmen associated with his firm, and the following pages contain the transcript of these Lectures delivered at Chelmsford. Confident that the right direction for technical training is to bring home to the craftsman the scientific principles involved in daily work which passes under his hands, the subjects which most naturally claimed attention were those involved in everyday experience of the audience addressed. It is with the hope that the elementary explanations here given may be useful to other similar practical students, and as introductory to larger treatises.
