So this is Dunhaven inquired Jack Benson. Ye-es, slowly responded Jabez Holt, not rising from the chair in which he sat tilted back against the outer wall on the hotel porch. It looks like it, muttered Hal Hastings, under his breath. Doesn't look like a very bustling place, does it asked Jack, with a smile, as he set down a black, cloth-covered box on the porch and leisurely helped himself to a chair. The box looked as though it might contain a camera. Tin-type fellers, thought Holt to himself, and did not form a very high estimate of the two boys, neither of whom was more than sixteen years of age. Just now, both boys were dusty from long travel on foot, which condition, at a merely first glance, concealed the fact that both were neatly enough, even if plainly, dressed. Huh! was all the response Jabez Holt made to Jack's pleasant comment. Hal, however, not in the least discouraged by a reception that was not wholly flattering, set down a box not unlike Jack's, and also something...
