THE ACTION OF THE THIRD SESSION. The long-continued inaction of Congress came to an end March 3, 1863, with the passage of the Habeas Corpus Act of that date. Weeks before this, however, several Republican senators expressed the opinion that it was now too late for an assertion of exclusive Congressional jurisdiction over the matter. Lane of Indiana said, December 22, 1862: Gentlemen speak of the President's usurpation of authority. The Constitution authorizes the suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, without saying in express terms who shall exercise that authority. The President has done it. It is an accomplished fact and cannot be undone. Suppose we now say that, in our opinion, the authority is given to Congress, can we change his convictions of duty or control his actions? Such a course will only bring about a conflict of authority between Congress and the President, and weaken the power of both. 1 A similar thought was developed by Collamer, January 9, 1863: The Executive is just as much clothed with authority, and bound in duty when called on, to give construction to the Constitution in the execution of it as we are, and his decision is just as binding as ours. and it is not common courtesy for one department of this Government to say to another, We say the Constitution means so and so, and we are infallible. The judiciary, when the question arises before...
